A delegation called on former United States Senator Hoke Smith Tuesday and asked him to enter the race for governor. He told its members he was not inclined to make the race, but further efforts to induce him to enter the race this morning will be made. It was stated that the senator reiterated his former statement to carrying out a program for the expansion and development of Georgia.

Z. V. Hyman, member of the legislature from Washington county, stated Tuesday that he may enter the race today as a candidate for the public service commission as an opponent of A. J. Woodruff, of DeKalb county.

The Ideal Woman

Some one said: "An ideal woman is one who is blind to man's imperfections." The ideal wife is one who has learned to save money by hunting for bargains in Constitution advertisements.

There are over 32,000 of these ideal wives in Atlanta and suburbs, and The Constitution goes into their homes every morning with the best bargains of Atlanta's merchants and shopkeepers.

The Constitution is delivered into more homes in Atlanta and suburbs every day than any other Atlanta newspaper. The purchasing agent of the home has time to read in the morning; her time is otherwise taken up in the afternoon and evening.

Boosts Democratic Support. The immediate result was an accession of increased democratic support to the bill. Instead of only 11 democratic senators, 19 are now listed as intending to vote for the measure. The situation tonight presents the spectacle of a desperate struggle between the democrats to put the president in a hole with the farmers and the administrations leaders to keep him out of the hole by defeating the bill in the senate. One administration leader admitted tonight he expected the bill to be passed by the senate, in spite of all that will be done to defeat it between now and Thursday and blamed Mellon for "spilling the beans." If the senate should pass the bill the battle would be transferred to the house, where the democrats presumably would employ the same strategy as in the senate to put the president in a hole. If, therefore, the corn belt gets its bill through congress it will be indebted to democratic campaign tactics for its victory. The immediate result was an ac-

Scott laughed at the trick at the time, saying he was not insane. He became troublesome at the asylum, and a state commission of alienists pronounced him sane and he was brought back to be hanged. DARTMOUTH GIVES MASTER'S DEGREE TO C. G. MILHAM

Hanover, N. H., June 22.—One of the first significant scholarly recog-nitions of community advertising took place at Dartmouth college com-mencement when President Ernest M. Hopkins conferred on Charles G. Mil-ham the honorary degree of master of arts.

ham the honorary degree of master of arts.

Milham is one of the founders and the executive officer of the All-Year club of Southern California. It is perhaps the first of the great organizations to advertise a section rather than a city. It advertises the entire southern part of California. In the five years of its work it has converted the place into an all-year-round vacation land. But perhaps more significant than this is the fact that it has made the southland realize its economic unity. It has tended to submerge the rivalries between cities.

to submerge the rivalries between cities.

This philosophy was further applied in the recent formation of the Pacific Coast Empire association. The association is composed of nine great areas on the Pacific coast extending from the Canadian to the Mexican line. It works on the basis "all for one and one for all." In application this policy means that 15 per cent of the funds of each organization are devoted to advertising the Pacific coast as a whole. Thus a united pull is exercised to have folks from the Atlantic seaboard see America first. Milham was one of the aggressive personalities in the formation of the Empire association and is the current chairman of its working committee, which plans all of the advertising. Milham's efforts were named at the commencement as "public service work."

Step by step civilization moves on and up to better things. The first "homes" which history records were those of the cave man. Later came crude shacks and tents; then the log cabin of our own country's early history — and now the modern homes and cottages which contain comforts and conveniences that even Kings of olden days never dreamed of! Even those in moderate circumstances today enjoy home comforts denied the Royal households of just a few hundred years ago!

Ever since an American, John Howard Payne, wrote "Home, Sweet Home," there has been an increasingly rapid interest in home life and in the things that give the home its strong appeal.

Butler, Ga., June 22.—(Special.)—
Despite inclement weather scores of Taylor county citizens poured into Butler tonight to hear the address of J. O. Wood, member of Fulton county legislature and candidate for governor.

The speaker continued to flay his opponent, John Holder, chairman of the highway board, and called on him to explain how the latter could change his position regarding a state highway bond issue. The speaker declared that he was not a bond candidate, but that if the people want bonds he will help them get them. He declared he will stand for an honest, economical and "business-like" administration.

Residents of North avenue, near West Peachtree street, were excited Tuesday nigh when Jesse Hill, 23, negro, of a Linden street address, shot and instantly killed Fannie and Gertrude Battle, negresses, who lived in rear of, 550 Peachtree street, according to police records. The shooting took place in front of the All Saints' Episcopal church.

Immediately after the shooting Hill walked into the Tech Inn sandwich shop at the northeast corner of West Peachtree street and North avenue, gave the smoking pistol to G. B. McDonald and M. C. Smith, who operate the sandwich shop, and asked the soda clerks to summon the police. He said he had killed two negro women, police were told.

When Call Officers H. Clay and M. B. Cartwright arrived, the negro told them that he killed the, two women because they were jealous of him and his girl, Jessie Britton, of 29 Stovall street, and earlier in the afternoon had beaten him and Jessie Britton with boards with nails in them. Hill is said to have returned to his home after the argument early in the afternoon, secured a pistol and when he encountered the two Battle negroes Tuesday night he opened fire. One of the Battle women was shot through the stomach and died instantly; the other was shot several times through the stomach and died instantly; the other was shot several times through the stomach and died defore Beidleman, the defeated candidate for governor, withdrew his charge that he had been counted out of the nomination. The committee has been unable to penetrate the wall of silence around the episode. There is a strong suspicion among the committee members that the warring gangs have made a harmony agreement and arranged that neither side shall "squeal." One of the county commissioners in charge of election returns, in Allegheny county, E. V. Babcock, former mayor of Pittsburgh, was questioned about the report that one ballot box was discovered to have been looted.

"That was one box out of some 1,400," he said. "Everything else was as clean as a whistle."

"Did the commissioners attempt to examine the other 1,400 odd boxes for similar evidence of fraud?" Rebeck. asked.

"There was a lot of squabbling," Babcock explained. "We closed the doors for an hour or two while we were arranging the return sheets but newspapermen were always admitted. We just wanted to keep the crowd out for a while. They tried to accuse us of getting away with something but they didn't have a darned thing. The attorney general rushed in and knocked at the door but when he saw everything was all right he issued a public statement saying so and went back to Harrisburg."

Max Leslie, known as the political boss of Pittsburgh testified that he withdrew from the campaign because of illness after some preliminary activity. Once he was called to Washington by the Mellons to assist in heading off the threatened Vage-Beidleman opposition but was unsuccessful.

Permanent roads are a good investment—not an expense

Before You Invest in Paving-Investigate Concrete

The Bates Experimental Road is now a matter of history. The highway authorities of Illinois built this road to find out what type of highway pavement was necessary to stand the pounding of twentieth century traffic.

Three principal road building materials and various combinations and thicknesses of these were used. For many days and nights fleets of loaded motor trucks passed over this 2-mile stretch. At intervals the truckloads were increased until each rear wheel was carrying 8,000 pounds. A total of 1,609,000 tons was trucked over the road during the test.

Only thirteen of the original sixty-three sections survived. Ten were of portland cement

The other three had heavy concrete foundations which in all respects corresponded to the plain sections of portland cement concrete.

Many other sections with wearing surfaces placed on less enduring foundations were failures, proving that the foundation strength of good concrete was the winning factor.

The test above referred to was equivalent to several years of normal highway traffic. It proved that properly built concrete pavement is the most enduring and economical street and road construction material known. It proved that the added cost of so-called ing surfaces" or "tops" of other material was bines all of the essentials of the ideal pave-ment—it is economical, skidproof, rigid and lowest in maintenance cost.

Many communities are profiting from the lessons taught by the Bates Experimental Road. Is your community one of these?

hand and Business University, the school that shows results.

Wise, indeed, are those who begin Business Training now, because they will be ready for positions in the fall and winter, when the big business concerns, that are preparing to open in Atlanta, will be wanting office help of all kinds.

Again the Southern's Employment Department presents below the names of thirty-four pupils who have just gone out into positions with large and important firms.

It is safe to state that where any other Business School in this city places one pupil in a position, the Southern places three to four.

With a large and efficient faculty; with handsomely equipped and commodious quarters, made delightfully pleasant by its many oscillating and exhaust fans; with furniture and fixtures which cost many thousands of dollars, including the Burroughs' Bookkeeping and Adding machines, multigraphs, 110 modern typewriting machines; with a nation-wide reputation for progressiveness, and the indosement of eight-tenths of Atlanta's prominent business men and bankers; with systems and methods which develop expert stenographers and efficient bookkeepers, making them dependable, the Southern Shorthand and Business University stands out conspicuously as the leader of Commercial Education in the south.

When the moisture in you runs low-

Thirst is nature's way of letting you know.

Three-fourths of you is moisture. Even more is required for the system to run on. Everything you do is constantly using up the supply. Of course your human boiler must be frequently replenished.

And when you thirst and want a drink you want-full enjoyment. You want something you can really taste, that makes you smack thirsty lips, that holds the chill of ice, that you can feel all the way down.

On this physiological foundation, Coca-Cola, a drink of natural flavors, through millions of dollars spent on plants, equipment and methods to safeguard its purity and wholesomeness, has proved more popular and perfect than any beverage before it or since.

NATION'S FINANCES. The financial condition of ou national government is healthy. Though warning against agitation at this time in favor of another tax reduction. President Coolidge, in addressing the eleventh regular meeting of the business organization of the government Monday night, showed conclusively that our treasury surplus at the close of the fiscal year June 30 will be far in excess of anticipations, and that our national deht has been reduced $836,193,887 during the year, or in round figures, $100,000,000 more than the gross reduction durdebt still remains large, $19,680,-000,000 but when we offset with the gross amount due this government by overseas nations, the situation is one of genuine encouragement, especially now that we are satisfactorily funding those debts.

The surprise feature of the president's address was the admission that we would have a $185,000,000 and a $20,000,000 surplus for the fiscal year 1928. The president, the secretary of the treasury and ences. budget officials have all maintained heretofore that the revenues in 1927 would not do more than "break even." . These statements are not compatible with the president's threat to close the door to further tax reductions. The democrats very probably will make capital out of this-and they should. It is the nation's duty to reduce taxes as rapidly as it is economically sound to do so.

HEALTH TALKS BY WM. BRADY, M. D.

PREDISPOSITION TO TUBER-CULOSIS

The trend of medical thought in this country has been rather away from the traditional view of a peculiar or special predisposition to tuberculosis, the modern conception of the disease being that most of us, more than 90 per cent of the whole population, have latent tuberculosis, perhaps a deeply situated lymph node in the chest or the abdomen harboring the smouldering focus of tubercle bacilli, but only a few of us, less culosis, and that is due to unhygienic mode of life.

Of course, this view of the question which medical and health authorities the countess told me, "until dinner last in America favor, involves the theory night, when I ordered wine. It is only : . me to express doubt about the influence of some of the conditions which are generally set down as predisposing factors of tuberculosis. My own doubt comes from the unscientific basis of the premise on which the very idea of "resistance" rests. If you will substitute for that rather romantic term the more accurate term immunity—which is a scientifically demonstrable state or scientifically demonstrable state or condition—you may more readily understand why I have such doubt. Immunity, so far as we knew, is invariably a specific state or condition—some kind of natural reaction or response to the action upon the body of the germs, toxins, poisons or substances to which the term refers. Lease Activities Jump.

Mr. Davis said that comparisons of recorded leases and amounts involved showed a like startling increase, but added that this record was of little value inasmuch as only a very small percentage of leases are recorded. Probably not over 1 per cent of the number of leases made in the county are recorded at all, he stated.

It is shown, however, that 206 were recorded in the period from 1916-20, while 429 were recorded for the 1921-25 period. The amounts represented in the first period totaled $19,135,948-56, while in the latter they total $72,846-674-49.

Mr. Davis said that a continuance of the remarkable increase in real estate activity is already certain for 1926, when the figures for this year are compiled, and he declared that there is no better barometer of the basic stability of a city's prosperity than the record of realty movements.

The Atlanta Title & Trust company keeps an absolutely accurate check on all real estate records at the courthouse, maintaining a corps of workers there to immediately copy all records filed.

Figures given in the chart just compiled, from which the above summaries are taken, cover Fulton county only, Mr. Davis said, and he pointed out that there are, of course, many real estate transactions of rimary importance and involving large sums in that portion of the city which lies in DeKalb county.

The summary of the year's transactions is compiled by the company annually and prepared in chart form for reference records and office convenience.

marched out in open definace of the elements.

As the veterans swung down Peachtree street they marched into a stinging rain not unlike that which thousands of them had felt on the blue fields of France. Their feet slipped on the wet pavement, as their hobnails had faltered other days on the curling white roads of the Gallic provinces, and the crisp tang in this north Georgia sair smacked a bit of the atmosphere they had known many a morning on the old fronts.

None of them trudged under the load of a 60-pound pack. None shouldered one of those business-looking Enfield rifles. None labored, breathing through a smothering gas mask, almosts as exhausting as gas itself. Nobody carried a trench knife under his belt, a hand grenade at his side or two bandoliers of ammunition around his body.

Old Fire Still There.

Vet the blaze of battle shone in many of their eyes—a fire that will never be quenched, a light familiar to citizens who have watched the parades of Confederate veterans march year after year through the streets of Atlanta. Older spectators know that battle somehow seems to put a spark into a fellow's eye and leave it there, glaring in the conflict, smouldering through times of peace, ever ready to leap forth, apparently, at the next foe. That old spark of the fire of battle was in many an eye in the parade and it will stay there despite the well-grounded arguments for peace, despite the horrible slaughter of wars, despite the advance of civilization. Atlanta has seen many a parade. Many companies of soldiers and veterans have marched down Peachtree, across Whitehall viaduct, by the traditional improvised stand at city hall; but never has Atlanta seen a parade like the one on Taesday.

Besides the Disabled Veterans the Women's Overseas Service legion, Spanish-American War Veterans, Georgia Society of Sons of Confederate Veterans; Atlanta chapter of the United Daughters of Confederacy, Knights of Columbus, Red Cross and the Atlanta police hand were all represented in the parade, as well as units from Fort McPherson.

was the offer to guarantee Wills a fight with the winner of the Tunney-Dempsey contest faverably received. The promoter's proposal in this connection was for a Wills match next year, in June at the earliest, but the commission indicated this would not satisfy its desires so far as the negro is concerned. Rickard said he would not consider staging more than one title match this year. Chairman Farley sought to have Dempsey classed formally as ineligible as a result of the champion's failure to accept an ultimatum, expiring today, to sign for a Wills match, but his motion to this effect was tabled. In its place the commission decided its rules on championships would apply to Dempsey. Such applications automatically would make the champion ineligible, since he has not defended his title in nearly three years, but as he is not a licensed boxer here its effect remains doubtful. The situation simply is that the champion is barred from New York so long as he does not fight Wills, the recognized and official challenger. Hornsby Gets Famous At St. Louis the big pitcher will again work with his old battery-mate, Killefer. Killefer managed the Cubs in 1922, 1923 and 1924, and part of last season, being removed during the latter part of the 1925 race. This spring Killefer was manager of the 1925 race. This spring Killefer signed as coa.h and assistant manager under Hornsby. While Killefer was manager of the Cubs, Alexander acted as a coach for the young pitchers and worked in the concher's box on the sidelines.

SENATORS. YANKS SPLIT BILL.

Washington, June 22.—Washington divided a double-header with New York today, winning the first in sensational manner. 8 to 7, and losing the nightcap b to 1. In the second game Rabe Ruth bagged his 23rd homer, putting the ball over the right field wall with one man on base.

In the ninth inning of the first game when the Yankees had a five-run lead, the Senators filled the bases, fell into a double for a win. Hoyt's Tifectiveness in the second game was in contrast to the wildness of Palmero. Cuban pitcher recently signed by the senators, and making his first ap-

Until Dodson's Liver Tone Drove Out Quarts of Sour Bile and Other Poisons.

There are entire sections where everyone seems to think they have malaria. Others believe they never fully got the malarial poison out of their systems.

Arnold Whiteson says: "For years I took calomel for the aches, biliousness, headache, constipation and the deathly feeling associated with what we believed to be malaria.

Last year I heard about Dodson's Liver Tone and bought a bottle for a few cents. Man, man, what a Godsend. In the morning it drove out quarts of black, sour bile. I got back my appetite for food, braced right up and haven't had a sick spell since. Whenever I feel a little bilious or the stomach gets sour, one dose of Dodson's Liver Tone is all I need. It is surely a blessing."

Hundreds of others tell the same

GATHER FOR PARLEY BREWSTER WINS RELIGIOUS EDITORS

Washington, June 22 .- (A) -Editors, managers and owners of church papers from all parts of the country papers from all parts of the country assembled here today to conference called by the editorial council of the Religious Press, initiated by the Federal Council of Churches.

Dr. Paul S. Leinbach, of Philadelphia, editor of The Reformed Church Messenger and president of the editorial council, asserted that "the religious press is today having a hard struggle" and that "some of the papers have even found themselves carrying on a losing fight." After citing the increased costs of publication, he expressed the opinion that "probably one of the reasons why the circulation of the church papers has not shown of the church papers has not shown greater increase is the fact that the newspapers and general magazines now give much space to religious

Avondale Residents Keep Cool On Summer's Hottest Days

FORTUNATE indeed are the residents of Avondale Estates, especially on these days when a hot sun bakes the city's streets.

For right at their very doors, they have this sparkling swimming pool, crystal clear, fed by running water from nearby springs, and set in a shady grove of oaks.

What can be more delightful than this privilege Avondale residents have—an invigorating, cooling plunge, before breakfast, in the late afternoon after a warm day's work, in the evening? The finest private swimming pool in all the South for their exclusive use! Equipped with every known device to add to swimmer's pleasure; life guards and swimming instructors in attendance. Hundreds enjoy it every day.

All of it made doubly attractive and convenient by the commodious modern bath house in quaint Old English architecture, with ample locker space and shower baths for both men and women, everything provided that could possibly be desired.

Really a Summer Paradise

And this is just one of the many exclusive pleasures of Avondale. For the children there is a five-acre playground, the most complete south of Philadelphia, where under the cooling shade of majestic trees the tiniest tots have every aid to wholesome play know to man's ingenuity—slides, see-saws, merry-go-rounds, literally dozens of swings, sand pits and even a wading pool where they may splash safely around to their hearts' content. Acres of wooded parks, large Lake Avondale, the winding bridle paths for a canter on fine gaited mounts from the Avondale Stables, golf on the course at your gates, tennis courts, athletic fields of every description.

In fact, Avondale boasts the distinction of providing more complete provision for wholesome recreation than any residential area in America.

$1,000,000 Development Program

At Avondale, a $1,000,000 development program surges forward. There are scores of homes to select from—100 will be built during the year—many of them are under way.

Why continue living in a stuffy apartment, where the children have only a curbstone for a playground, when you can live in this glorious homeland and let rent pay for your home? There is a dream home for every family and a price for every pocketbook.

Don't forget this outstanding fact—every person who purchased in the first unit made from 50% to 100% on the amount actually invested.

Although on the market but two months, resales have netted purchasers as high as $1,000 profit in the second unit, now more than 50% sold out.

Get in on the ground floor, while it is possible to take advantage of the 20% pre-development discount.

Speaker after speaker spoke of the ideal life of Dr. Lacy, of his success as a pastor, of the influence he has exerted for good during the seven years he has been pastor of the Central Presbyterian church here, and many of them declared that it was only in the realization that the change he is making is in the nature of a promotion that they could reconcile themselves to letting him go.

The atmosphere of the meeting, de-

Press Huddleston, chairman of the committee of the Lions' club which had arranged the affair, acted as toastmaster. He announced that speeches would be limited to four minutes each and pointed to a duplicate traffic signal, hung over the center table, which signalled in red "stop" when a speaker's time was out. To add to the effectiveness of the signal, an Atlanta policeman was present in the full uniform of a traffic officer, who promptly rose to his feet and called the speaker's attention to the stop signal in true traffic officer style when they attempted to exceed their allowance.

Rabbi David Marx was the first speaker and, on behalf of the Jews of Atlanta, he spoke of the high calling which prompts Dr. Lacy's removal, who goes to teach future teachers who will occupy the pulpits of his denomination. Rabbi Marx said: "Irrespective of creed or of race, we have all loved you, and may God's blessing go with you."

Mayor Walter'A. Sims spoke of Dr. Lacy as a citizen. He filled the time allotted originally to Governor Clifford Walker, who was out of the city. The mayor told how both city and state would lose by Dr. Lacy's departure, and said he had particularly noted the wonderful work done by the pastor of Central Presbyterian. He stated, that he would be a candidate in the next election, and referred to his position on the prohibition question as "uncompromisingly wet."

I regret most profoundly that I must withdraw from the contest at this time because of the thousands of loyal friends who have pledged the cause I represent unstituted support. My withdrawal is no indication that I either fear defeat or that the present prohibition law is not condemned by a majority of our people. As all within the range of my acquaintance know, I am a young lawyer with little capital, and three children have first claim upon my modest income. While patriotism is a splendid trait, no man can be a patriot whose first consideration is not for those dependent upon him.

The Anti-Saloon league is flooding this district with campaign money, and the bootleggers and radicals are organized to accomplish my defeat. To overcome the influence of extravagant advertising would necessarily lacur greater expense than, frankly, I can hope to cope with. A further reason for my decision is the fact that a law practice which occupies all my time and energies, and which has been unusually voluminous, has drawn heavily on my physivoluminous, has drawn heavily on my physivoluminous, has drawn heavily on my physical and the security of the red of the complex all my time and energies, and which has been unusually voluminous, has drawn heavily on my physical and the security of her needs for a new postoffice and that such an executive—probably either himself or First Assistant Postmaster General Burlett, would come here to make such an investigation.

I have not enjoyed a vacation in five years, and as the present context promises to be a hot one, I could, not hope to give it loyal work under present conditions of my health and strength. Let me remind the thousands who have pledged me support that I shall continue to be uncompromisingly wet and expect to give the present 'bone dry' law battle until prohibition reforms become the law of the land. Two years hence I will make the race and expect to lead our cause to victory.

It is neither proper nor expected of me to support either of the remaining candidates actively unless one of them should announce for modification. In such an event I would appeal to my supporters to rally to his banner and would work actively to the end that he received a deserved overwhelming victory. I am now out of the race, but expect to continue to advocate and support the cause, and appeal to my friends over the district to swat the dryest man in the race hardest, to the end that Georgia may take her place among the sisterbood of states in volcing protest against a law which has wrought greater menace to morality and civilization than any statute that was ever forced on a liberty-loving nation.

INSTALLMENT XXXIX. THE LOVERS MEET AT LAST.

The train left on time, so further delay was highly improbable. It as unfortunate, of course, that John's passing through Fort William should be blazoned far and wide in this fashion, since that was the inevitable sequel, as he well knew. If fugitives from justice had ever grasped the essential fact that they were vastly safer in a crowded city than in the remote corners of the earth they would escape more frequently. In London every man is a stranger once he leaves his own coor. In Fort William, as in this instance, not even a dog can pass without being noticed. It was quite certain that a collision, a dog fight, and the return of the heir to inverlochtie, all bound up together, would cross the country from sea to sea before nightfall.

That persistent policeman thought it his duty to see John and Spot safely off the premises, so he strolled into the station a few minutes before the train departed. He observed that the two were traveling first class, and was passing along the platform toward the exit when some one hailed him from a third class carriage.

"Isn't that man with the dog the Honorable John Panton?" came the muttered demand.

"Yes," said the policeman.
"I thought so. He's the blighter who was dismissed from the army in 1918 for cowardice in front of the enemy. If he hadn't a good pull somewhere he would have been shot."

Now, the Fort William constabulary may be inquisitive, but they are loyal, and their representative in the railway station that morning thought that the dissipated looking person who made these disparaging remarks should not be encouraged.

"Alblins ye're mista'en, mister," he said.
"And aiblins I'm not," retorted the other. "I can't imagine how he dare show his nose here, but he'll be about as popular at inverlochtic as

They recognized each other instantly and both were greatly startled.

a mad Jackal, which is what his d—d dog looks like."

"Ay, mebbe. I dinna ken much aboot they jackals. Hae they twa legs, or four?"

"Four, like a jackass." The policeman stuck his head through the open window, and affected surprise at discovering that Panton's scathing critic was a biped. It was a neat bit of comedy. In reality he wanted to find out exactly how deponent was dressed, and make a note of him, because, speaking candidly, he didn't like his haggard face and staring eyes.

"Nae doot ye'll hae met Mr. Panton i' Canada?" he said.
"No. I met him in hell, and wish he had stopped there."

The train moved on. Out came the notebook, and the whole conversation went into it.

John caught a distant glimpse of his birthplace as the train wound lis way through the tumbled hills. Although Inverlochtie was fully ten miles from Mallaig, the railway at the watershed passed within three miles, but the lie of the land and the head of a broad sea-water loch made communication from that point almost impracticable. On the lake he saw a smart steam launch, an innovation eloquent of the new money Leslie had spoken of. Its presence induced memories of his army career. The family was so poor then that his private allowance was negligible. During his brief periods of leave from the front he had to consider carefully such items of expenditure as railway fares and botel bills.

Perhaps he was acting precipitately. Would it not have been more prudent had he accepted Eileen's own alternative, and arranged to meet her in London? Well, here was Mallaig. He had crossed the Rubicon. Having no boats to burn he filled his pipe, grabbed his kit, and was marching down the platform when he came face to face with Eileen herself.

They recognized each other instantly, and both were greatly star-tled. John stood stock still, a good-sized bag in his left hand, a smaller and Spot's leash in his right, and the pipe clenched hard between eeth. The color fled from the girl's cheeks. She stared at him so forlornly that Mary Lansing, who happened to catch her friend's faint gasp which was half a sob cried in surprise:

"My hat, Eileen, what's the matter? First time I've ever known you nervy. The kiddies are here, dearest. I told you they would be at the nervy. The kiddies are here, dearest. I told you they would be at the far end of the train. Mademoiselle Celeste was once in a bad railway smash in France, and insists now on traveling in the last coach. She doesn't believe me when I assure her-O, is that it?"

For John had dropped both bags, stuffed the lighted pipe into a pocket with sublime indifference to the nearness of a box of matches, and clasped Eileen's faltering hand in both of his. 'You dear girl!" he cried, "How good of you to meet me! And,

O, how good it is to see you!" Poor Elleen said nothing. Her eyes filled with tears. The mere touch of him flooded her with happiness. It was not the sort of greettouch of him flooded her with happiness. It was not the sort of greeting she had planned, but the station was momentarily thronged, and more than half the people present knew both John and herself. Somehow, too, she felt that he would understand. How big, and strong, and confident he looked! Here was a man whose soul shone through his worshiping gaze. Could she really have doubted him? Well, thank Heaven, that phase had passed forever!

She murmured his name and Lady Lansing's brokenly. Her friend, of course, showed perfect tact.

"I am so glad to have met you at last, Mr. Panton," she purred delightedly. "Forgive me if I rush away for a minute. My three chicks are here, and I see that their governess is demanding what she calls their petites valises from the rear van, while, as you know, the luggage is put in the front one as being yastly more convenient."

In those few words she had inferred everything—complete knowledge, full of saying: Eileen was finding her tongue at last when Spot growled. It was his way of saying:

"Look out! There's some one here who is not a friend."
In the conditions John was hardly to be blamed if he paid no heed to the warning. He was in Scotland, not in northern Alberta. Moreover, was he not glowering at Eileen? So Spot growled again.

"What's gone wrong with you?" demanded his master amusedly.

"Elleen, I do believe my pal here is jealous . . . Spot, you rascal, shake

O OVER a million Georgians "the city" means only Atlanta. For shopping always, for the particular purchase, for the theater, for every luxury, this million men and women turn naturally to Atlanta. Every day thousands of them throng the thoroughfares of the city drawn by Atlanta's recognized position as style center of the South.

From the Carolinas and Alabama, they come, too, for 1,215,836 people, living within 45 to 125 miles of Atlanta, depend on Atlanta department stores, women's specialty shops, milliners and furriers. They buy clothing, radios, musical instruments, furniture from Atlanta merchants.

They help make Atlanta's opera audiences. They attend Atlanta theaters and movies. To them, Atlanta and the Atlanta spirit are definite symbols of their own prosperity, the city whose advantages and whose foresight have speeded the amazing growth of Georgia and the Southeast.

Every tie of interest binds them to Atlanta. Atlanta is the gateway through which the cotton from their fields, their apples, their peaches, the whole varied product of farm and pasture moves to market. Textiles from their mills, bricks from their kilns, ore from their mines, enjoy a better, more ready market because of Atlanta. Atlanta banks help finance their operations.

They believe in Atlanta, feel that they are a part of the Atlanta community.

New York, June 22 .- (P) - Relative firmness of near months featured the cotton market today. July contracts sold up to 18.10, or 30 points net higher, and closed at 18.04, compared with 17.80 at the close yestesday, while January closed at 16.23, or 4 points net lower. The general market closed steady, net 24 points higher to 5 points lower.

The market opened at an advance f 5 points to a decline of 3 points, ut turned shortly after the call on pprehensions that the southwest was getting too much rain and that the wet weather would promote the spread of insects. There also was buying on a report that the cetton, hopper was damaging the crop in northern Louisiana and points in Terras Mississiani Casaria and northern Louisiana and points in Texas, Mississippi, Georgia and Arkansas.

Active months showed net advances of about 6 to 17 points on these advices, but demand tapered off around 16.56 for December and 16.33 for January. The detailed weather reports showed rather less rain than anticipated in the southwest, while the forecast was considered more favorable and later positions eased off during midday.

Near months seemed to attract considerable support, however. There was active buying of both July and October against sales of later deliveries, probably to transfer short contracts in advance of the first July notice day, or in anticipation that premiums would be required to bring cotton here for delivery on the early new crop month. October, which had been selling about 6 points under December at the close of the previous day, went to a premium of 15 points over December at the close. Buying of October and December also was reported here against selling in New Orleans. At the close July and October were 22 to 24 points net higher, while more active deliveries were net 1 point higher to 4 points lower.

New York, June 22.—Call money renewing at 4 1-4 per cent following the advance in the rate late yesterday to 4 1-2 per cent caused the stock market to slown down. The stock market continued, however, on the steady side.

Higher call money temporarily was expected by Wall street bankers. In preparing for the unusually heavy interest and dividend payments of June 15, together with the heavy government financing, funds had to be accumulated by the banks. Checks against these accumulated funds were put into the mails, some of the checks going a long distance. While these funds were thus being held, call money worked easy. Now there has been a return to the natural flow of money which is being disturbed temporarily by the preparations already being made for the heavy July interest and dividend payment. which next to those of January 1 are the largest monthly payments of the year.

For the longer look ahead wall street bankers are refusing to take a stand because of the many existing cross currents now apparent in the markets for call and time money and for commercial paper. There are times when the trend of general trade is determined by the trend of the money market. Wall street bankers feel now that this late summer and early autumn the trend of the summer and early autumn the trend at the summer and early autumn the trend of the money market will be deter-mined by the trend of general trade, about which there is still some un-

Hardening of Rates.

While refusing to take a definite stand on the trend of the money market for the longer look ahead until more is known about the trend of crops and general trade, Wall street bankers may be found who believe that if general trade continues to improve to the point where money rates will be hardened, this hardening of money rates, in view of the existing delicate adjustment between our domestic and foreign demand and domestic and foreign production, will cause a slowing down in our domestic general trade. There are times when general trade on the mend ignores advancing money rates. That is when the margin of profits in general trade can afford to ignore higher money rates. Some Wall street bankers are of the belief that under general fundamental conditions general trade will not ignore advarcing time money rates and rates on compression paper. ime money rates and rates on com mercial paper. However, that is something which Wall street bankers feel is to be decided by actual developments, and in the meantime they are going to stay on the fence.

Rumors were heard here today that Standard Oil of New Jersey is plan-ning to retire within the next few months, its $200,000,000 outstanding ing in the open market a couple of points higher. Wall street's guess is that the preferred stock will be re-tired from funds raised by offering common stock to shareholders with rights, and that as part of these plans the commission.

The reorganization committee of the bondholders was represented at Tuesday's sale by George E. Roosevelt and T. A. Fowler, Jr., of New York city, and theirs was the only bid made for the property.

There will be no change in operation of road, it was stated, until the bondholders finally dispose of the properties under the reorganization stock last year and earnings are now believed to be running ahead of 1925. The outstanding preferred stock was put out by J. P. Morgan and com-pany, the first time this banking firm ever acted for a Standard Oil company: The money required by Standard Oil of New Jersey at that time, during and immediately after the war, cost the company 7 per cent plus the banking commission, but at that time other companies were raising needed banking commission, but at that time other companies were raising needed funds at a cost of 8, 9, 10 per cent and even more. Union Oil of California, which has been associated with two or three other comsociated with t Commission houses took some of the slack out of the pits on the breaks. World's stocks of wheat were said to have decreased 5,740,000 bushels. Corn rallied slightly with wheat after touching new lows for July and September deliveries, as a result of scattered selling which found support lacking. July went to a wider discount under September, with cash interests buying the former and selling the latter on the break. The present spread is the widest in many years. More favorable weather over the corn belt was a factor.

belt was a factor.

Oats were lower with corn, some stop loss orders being uncovered on the decline. All deliveries sold within a fraction of the lowest figures on he crop.
Provisions rallied sharply toward the close after averaging lower ear-lier in sympathy with grains and a decline in hogs, the final spurt being attributed to heavy buying by com-mission houses for foreign account.

trials, although U. S. Steel common developed an outburst of strength in late trading, touching 139 and closing at 138 1-4, up 3-4 net, after having sold down to 136 1-2 in the morning. General Motors, Baldwin, California Packing, Coca-Cola, Marine preferred. Mack Truck, Pierce-Arrow. Postum Cereal and Woolworth all sold down 1 to 3 points.

Pools were again active in a number of specialties which have promising dividend or merger possibilities. Pullman touched 182 1-2, the highest price in 15 years, and net gains of 2 points or more were recorded by Atlantic Gulf. West Ludden. 2 points or more were recorded by Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies, Howe Sound, Federal Mining & Smelting preferred, Great Western Sugar, Sav-age Arms, Simmons company and Sloss-Sheffield Steel. Commodity markets moved within rather narrow and irregular limits and railroad shares featured today's irregularly higher stock market, which was called upon to absorb a rather large volume of profit-taking. Trading showed a further falling off in volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,838,700 shares, compared with 1,847,200 yesterday and 2,230,600 last Friday.

satisfactory, provided the background for the advance in the oil issues, new peak prices for a year, or longer, were attained by Texas company, Phillips and Standard Oil of California. Union Oil of California, which has been associated with two or three other companies in consolidation rumors, rallied 2 points to 56. Attempts to bid up Marland and Pan-American B failed to make much headway.

Excellent May earnings reports furnished the basis for the advance in the railroad shares, the average of 20 leading issues in that group touching a new high record. Several in this group also broke through to new high levels, the list including Union Pacific, Lehigh Valley and Gulf, Mobile & Northern common and preferred.

Profit-taking was particularly heavy in some of the standard indus-

New York, June 22 .- (P)-Bullish

New York, June 22.—Evidence of a tight-ening up of the cash position attracted more buying interest in cottonseed oil today and prompted covering operations which effected a good upturn in prices. Higher lard and cotton had much bearing on sentiment. Clos-ing prices were 21 to 33 points net higher. Sales 12,100 barrels. Prime crude nominal:

MOVIE DIRECTOR IN INDIA PREVENTS

(Copyright, 1926, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.) The Chicago Tribune.)

Bombay, June 22.—India is developing a Hollywood of its own. At least movie vamps and stars are breaking scandalously into public print, the latest escapade being that of Miss Gulab, or Miss Rose, as her name is translated into English.

After triffing with the affections of several Bombay youths, Miss Rose agreed to give a series of dances before a young men's Moslem association. This afternoon previous to the performance, however, she was dragged off to the jungles by a picture show director and camera man in order to prevent her appearing to dance. She was detained there until too late to give the dance, and the case has now come into the courts here.

New York, June 22.—Rails and oils were the leaders in today's market, the effect of steady accumination in the petroleum group making for higher levels. Rails were generally strong. There was good buying in Wabsah, Kansas City Southern and St. Louis Southwestern. Profit-taking in the last hour resulted in some recessions from the high levels of the day. Motrotocks in general were inclined to heaviness with Hudson, General Motors, Chrysler and Mack showing losses due somewhat to traders switching to get into more active issues.

The High Cost Of Excess Weight

Excess weight in motor trucks is expensive. It increases the purchase price and it costs as much to carry as an equal weight of pay load. Its cost is even greater, because it must be carried all the time.

Graham Brothers trucks have a larger proportion of pay load to chassis weight than is usually available in their respective capacities. Careful buyers are giving this due recognition, as their marked preference for Graham Brothers trucks indicates.

Built by the largest exclusive truck makers in the world-powered by Dodge Brothers dependable engine—these trucks are capable of an exceptional amount of profitable work over a long period of life.

Lassiter denied that he was guilty of charges against him brought by Judge E. C. Darlington, of the juvenile court of Tampa, which included the sending of delinquent girls to institutions of other states, where they had been subjected to "slavery conditions" and the misuse of funds. The former probation officer broke down and sobbed several times during the hearing before the governor, as he declared his innocence of wrongdoing.

Loew's Grand.

Clever comedy is the predominating note on the vaudeville bill at Loew's Grand theater this week. Chain and Bronson, comedians, are the headliners and they have a great act which includes some of the funniest material produced in Atlanta this season. Nat Haines and company in "Hello Mamma," also present a laughable sketch. Geneve Butler and Leo Flanders present a pleasing musical program. Paul Jacobson, Chicago's "golf wizard," makes some marvelous golf shots in his novelty act. The Conley trio presents a series of marvelous iron jaw feats in the opening number. "Brown of Harvard" is the Loew feature picture. The tremendous success of "The in the opening number. "Brown of Harvard" is the Loew feature pic-of Atlanta's municipal musical comedy company, gives promise of big audiences for next week's offering, for which tickets will be put on sale Thursday at the Atlanta theater box office. This will include Victor Herbert's "Her Regiment," a tuneful operetta in three acts, with stirring march songs, a number of dances, and comedy galore.

Vera Myers, star of Ziegfeld's "Sally" will have the leading role in "Her Regiment" and Lou Powers, the leading comedian, will be given a great opportunity as Blanquet, the drunken soldier.

Performances of the musical comedy season are given every night at Clearing and fair weather is the official forecast for Atlanta today, according to C. F. von Hermann, local meteorologist. Atlanta's rainfall showed .27 inch during the past 24 hours, but the last of the showers has descended upon Atlanta for several days, it was stated at the local weather bureau. Temperatures for Tuesday range between 65 as a minimum and 79 as a maximum. Temperatures for today are expected to be considerably higher than those of Tuesday. Although the Atlanta forecast predicts fair weather for today, the Washington weather forecast is thundershowers over the northern part of the state.

MISS HELEN SAMPLER TAKES POISON DOSE

Miss Helen Sampler, 20, of Eagan Park, was treated at Grady hospital Tuesday night, after swallowing a tablet of potassium permanganate in her home early in the night, doctors were told.

Miss Sampler was given first aid treatment at the hospital, where her condition was greatly improved. She did not tell doctors whether she swallowed the table through mistake. notable diligence in the protecprepared handsome bronze medals which will be awarded by a committee composed of Governor John W. Martin. of Florida: Governor Henry L. Whitfield, of Mississippi, ex-Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, of Georgia; George B. Dealey, editor of the Dallas News; Marshall Ballard, editor of the New Orleans Item, and Mrs. J. H. McCoy, president of Athens college, Alabama.

All nominations for the award will be carefully passed on by this committee and the medals will be presented on a public occasion by some representative person in each state. The medal is a beautiful work of art in bronze and was designed by one of the leading American sculptors. Its preparation was authorized by the interracial commission at the annual meeting of 1925 as part of the effort for the elimination of mob violence, which is being carried on by many representative agencies and individuals throughout the south.
